Materials

La vera pelle è un prodotto naturale. Respira, è calda, resistente e possiede caratteristiche particolari che rendono ogni articolo unico nel suo genere. Il pellame conserva sempre segni originari dell'animale quali cicatrici, graffi, differenze di densità delle fibre o pori irregolari e queste caratteristiche gli conferiscono un valore aggiunto, differenziandolo nel contempo dalla cosiddetta "ecopelle", ovvero la finta pelle.

L'ecopelle è un particolare tessuto ecologico, simile alla pelle naturale, ma solo nell'aspetto, in quanto non deriva da pelli di animali, ma è costituita da materiali plastici e sintetici. Essa ha i vantaggi di essere molto meno delicata della vera pelle, si pulisce più facilmente ed è anche più economica.

Il cuoio rigenerato, è un materiale composto da circa l'80% di fibre di cuoio, spesso scarti di cuoio o pelle, che si ottiene con un processo industriale. Il cuoio viene finemente tritato e mischiato a gomma naturale o lattice fino ad ottenerne un composto omogeneo che viene lavorato in fogli di diverso spessore. Il prodotto finale al tatto e alla vista è simile alla vera pelle.

Le vrai cuir est un produit naturel. Il respire, il est chaud, durable et possède des caractéristiques particulières qui rendent chaque pièce unique. Le cuir garde toujours les signes originaux des animaux comme les cicatrices, égratignures, les différences de densité des fibres ou pores irréguliers et ces qualités lui confèrent une valeur ajoutée, tout en le différenciant soi-disant du «éco-cuir» ou d'imitation.

L'eco-cuir est un tissu écologique particulier, semblable au cuir naturel, mais seulement en apparence, car ne proviennent pas de peaux d'animaux, mais se compose de matières plastiques et synthétiques. Il a l'avantage d'être un cuir beaucoup moins délicat et facile à nettoyer.

Le cuir régénéré, est un matériau composé d'environ l'80% de fibres de cuir, est il est obtenue avec un procédé industriel. Le cuir est finement hachés et mélangés avec du caoutchouc naturel ou latex jusqu'à obtenir un mélange homogène qui est travaillé en feuilles d'épaisseurs différentes. Le produit final à la toucher et à la vue est similaire au cuir véritable.

The real leather is a natural product. It breathes, it is warm, durable and possesses special characteristics that make each item unique. The leather always keeps original animal signs such as scars, scratches, differences in density of the fibers or pores irregular and these qualities give it an added value, while differentiating it from the so-called "eco" or imitation leather.

The eco-leather is a particular ecological fabric, similar to natural leather, but only in appearance, because it is not the result of animal skins, but consists of plastic and synthetic materials. It has the advantages of being a lot less delicate than real leather, easy to clean and also cheaper. Lends itself, as the true skin for any type of utilization and thanks to its characteristics it confers to the product high strength and durability over the time

The regenerated leather, is a material composed of about 1'80% of leather fibers, often scraps of leather or leather, which is obtained with an industrial process. The leather is finely chopped and mixed with natural rubber or latex up to obtain a homogeneous compound which is worked into sheets of different thicknesses. The final product to the touch and sight is similar to real leather.
